

EEU414 – The Future of Work

EEU414 is a new course. The aim of this course is to introduce you to the future of work and help you develop skills that are paramount for your own future career. EEU414 consists of two parts:

- NHH Module on Presentation Techniques with Polestar Case Study
- ENGAGE.EU Module on Future of Work

Case Study with Polestar

In this part of the course, you will team up with other NHH students and work on an assigned case that Polestar supplies. The final product is a presentation of your solutions to Polestar's challenges in front of experts from Polestar. We will also use the cases to sharpen your presentation skills. To this end, we'll have four in-person sessions where we discuss different aspects of presentations and I'll teach you simple tricks to excel at these aspects. We'll also use these sessions to provide repeated feedback on your cases and practice your presentation skills. I expect you to show up at all the events listed below and actively participate in the course!

ENGAGE.EU Modules

The ENGAGE.EU Module is a fully online module that introduces you to the future of work with a multidisciplinary approach. For this module we partner with Vienna, Mannheim, and Toulouse. The module consists of online modules (short videos and assignments) that introduce you to the topic and a collaborative online international learning (COIL) group assignment. In the COIL group assignment, you work on a case in an international team consisting of students from the other partner universities. Through the cooperation of people with diverse (academic) backgrounds, you gain theoretical knowledge on a current topic, relevant digital and organizational skills, and valuable experiences through cooperating with students from other institutions. You can find more details on this part of the course on the course website:
